Dear Doctor Sabin:

Upon inquiry I find that there is none left of any of the batches of human type encephalomyelitis vaccine used in the Canadian experiment. We have made a point of discarding this material at the end of six months so that by now all of these batches are out of date and therefore thrown away. There is on hand one Lab Number - 147H-16B - made in the same way. I am asking that 12 packages of this material be sent to you and I hope that it will meet your needs.

We have always retained formalin in the finished vaccine to act as a preservative; we have never tried to find out whether or not neutralization had damaged the keeping quality of the product.

Sincerely yours,

Ralph W. G. Wyckoff
