Dear Dr. Sabin:

Thank you for the information on preparations of the various hemagglutinins, from which we intend to use this information.

I am enclosing two manuscripts intended for publication. One has been reviewed by the J.B.O. with remarks attached. In the instance (remarks 2E) a more careful perusal of tables and terminology (representative) would have answered this question. A majority of the other suggestions I believe would have resolved themselves dependent primarily upon editorial policy of the accepting journal.

Please review and return these papers at your earliest convenience along with any criticism you see appropriate.

With kindest regards, I remain,

Sincerely,

Burns.
