Dear Dr. Satin,

Please forgive this intrusion into your very busy life.

After reading a very interesting article in this morning's paper, about yourself and your knowledge of Russia's work with your live polio vaccine.

I was wondering if you had any information on a special news broadcast, we heard it here in Pittsburgh Jan 23rd. It was supposed to have come from Moscow. Stating Russia had found a drug which is supposed to cure polio: greatly improve paralysis caused by polio. In the broadcast they stated the name of the drug, also the locality in which it is found.

Except for those few unnoticed broadcasts, nothing more has ever been mentioned on what would truly be a wonderful blessing for
So many people, who can no longer be helped by any preventive medicine. Usually on any broadcast of this kind, there is a follow-up in the newspapers. Either confirming or discrediting the announcement. On this there was nothing.

So I was wondering if you would have any information on this subject.

My interest in this is practically my life. Am only child.

I contacted polio at the age of [redacted]. She is now [redacted] years old, and wears leg braces. To date she has had quite a bit of recovery, but far from complete. And you can well imagine I would go to practically any ends, to see lead as normal a life as I or anyone can make for her.

Thank you for your time.

Yours truly,
