Dear Albert:

I just heard from you about Fishbien's acceptance, and I believe you are right about prompt publication. All this is good news. I wrote you yesterday at length about various matters including this paper.

As I remember Cattell sends acceptance notes and does so quite promptly. I am hoping for the best.

It is surprising to hear about the olfactory bulbs. London and Smith have reported some with lesions. Perhaps
Some of these still to be examined that reveal changes. If they do not, should one think of certain strains as active recently? Or certain individuals as susceptible by nasal route? Or as certain epidemics due to one strain; others to more than one? Of course this anticipates the final results.

I find myself busy about chores in this big house and renewing old acquaintanceships and friend-ships here. I shall get settled in a day or two—or when the fire wood is stacked up.

It was a pleasure to hear from you and the pleasantly about Sylvia Sidney. Mr. Smith probably thinks that the Institute has made a good investment at Woods Hall to find at least one man at work there on a beautiful day. Don't work too hard, liquids to Sylvia. Also,
