Dear Doctor Sabin:

The remaining thirty cynomolgus monkeys due on your telephone request of the 15th will be shipped on Monday, February 25.

I am sorry it was not possible for us to send you monkeys of one size however I am sure you understand our position. We did send you all of the large animals we had on hand and I sincerely hope that these met your requirements satisfactorily.

I know you will be pleased to know that we are not under any circumstances mixing the animals prior to shipment. Monkeys being shipped are from cages which have been stable for at least a period of seven days — which means that monkeys were not removed from those particular cages because they appeared to be ill.

I shall be pleased to hear from you Doctor regarding the condition of these animals when they arrive at your institution. You know that we mean to furnish only good animals and really want to know when something goes wrong — of course any comments and suggestions which you would like to make to help us do a good job are most welcome.

With every good wish, I am

Sincerely yours,

Stephanie Radziwanowski
