Dear Dr. Sabin:

In a conversation I had with you several years ago at the First International Poliomyelitis Conference, I think you told me that lesions had been found in sympathetic ganglia as a result of infection with pseudorabies virus.

I wonder if you would be good enough to tell me where I can find more information about this, or any other infectious process that has been found to produce lesions in sympathetic ganglia?

Yours very truly,

Martin G. Larrabee
