

C. A. CACERES, M.D.

RECEIVED

JAN 7 1974

M. P. FOR SPECIAL PROJECTS

January 3, 1975

George Rieveschl, Sc.D., Ph.D.
Vice President for Special Projects
301 Administration
University of Cincinnati
Cincinnati, Ohio 45221

Dear Dr. Rieveschl:

As Program Chairman for the Association for the Advancement of Medical Instrumentation (AAMI) 1975 National Meeting, I am pleased to be able to ask you to participate in a special invited presentation. This special invited presentation is to be on an artificial heart. This presentation is co-authored by Neil Armstrong, Edward A. Patrick, M.D., Ph.D., and Henry Heimlich, M.D.

This special invited presentation will be at the end of one of the afternoon sessions with appropriate notices in the final program regarding the special character of the presentation. It is not included in the current preliminary programs which have already been printed. We will work out time and actual date between the 16th and 20th of March as soon as confirmation is received.

It is our understanding that the paper will be presented by Professor Neil Armstrong and the final program and all announcements will so indicate. A draft of the program listing is attached. Please let me have your acceptance and confirmation of this invitation at the earliest possible date so that we can proceed with the program inclusions.

Sincerely yours,

C. A. Caceres, M.D.

cc: M. J. Miller
AAMI Executive Director

Clinical Systems Associates, Inc.
1759 Que Street, Northwest
Washington, D.C. 20009
(202) 667-5041

Special Invited Presentation on an Artificial Heart

Neil Armstrong
Henry Heimlich, M.D.
Edward A. Patrick, M.D., Ph.D.
George Rieveschl, Sc.D., Ph.D.

(Jewish Hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio;
University of Cincinnati; Purdue University)

Paper To Be Presented By N. Armstrong, Senior Author