Dear doctor Sabri,

The parcel containing your very kind letter and the encephalitis virus strain arrived a week ago. Of eight mice which received the virus, undiluted, all died between the fifth and the eighth day after the inoculation, without any bacterial infection. So the virus seems to have survived the trip all right.

I thank you very much for the strain which you sent me so quickly, as well as for the useful advice which accompanied the parcel. I wish I could be one day of any help to you.

With best regards,

Yours sincerely
Dr. L. Quersin
