Dear Doctor Sabin:

Earlier this year I corresponded with you in hopes of obtaining a position in your laboratory. I was pleasantly surprised to learn that you did have space but because of the development of my work at that time I was unable to terminate my position at St. Jude Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee.

I have, since last writing you, moved to New York where I am continuing the work on the Lucké tumor which I began at St. Jude. Because of the progress I had been able to make with this investigation I was extremely hesitant to put it aside.

I do hope, however, that in the future I will be able to write to you again for consideration. I shall be here in New York until at least July 1, 1966.

Sincerely,

Paul Came, Ph.D.
