Dear Albert:

I am timing this letter to reach you upon your return after your whirlwind trip from home, around to Rehovot and back to Cincinnati.

Our plans for the meeting at the Hebrew University next March are still in the embryonic stage; I am trying to inveigle Frances into coming along, although she complains about it being too cold enroute. If we do go together, we would be expected to stop in Bethesda, and then either London or Rome.

We just came back from a month, off and on, in Palm Springs, where the temperatures have been in the high 80s. As it happens, today has been cold and rainy here, but we needed the rain badly and it is welcome.

In the event that we do go together, we will certainly stop and see you in Rehovot, although I assume that you will be dropping in at the meeting in Jerusalem as well.

Our best and kindest regards to both you and Jane. Until further, I beg to remain,

Sincerely,

T. Chanock
